The present invention relates to a temperature-sensitive resistor element, e.g., a thermistor, using a ceramic substrate and a method for manufacturing the same. Recently, temperature-sensitive resistors are widely used in automobile air conditioners, home electric appliances, industrial equipments, and medical instruments as an essential circuit component. Generally, these temperature-sensitive resistors are formed on a ceramic substrate. In the case of a temperature-sensitive resistor using a ceramic substrate, a ceramic powder is formed by a printing method, a green sheet is obtained by a co-firing method, and a resistor is formed by patterning. On the other hand, a ceramic substrate in which a temperature-sensitive resistor and other electronic components are mounted by flip chip connection is disclosed in Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2002-348417, for example. In addition, Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2002-348417 proposes to improve the dielectric properties of the ceramic substrate by forming the ceramic substrate from a green sheet. Raikou Update: In this scene, I decided to add Ash's Pokédex entry for the second time as well as his tag. Ash does not know that he is being transferred yet. However, Ash has managed to get a species and a gender to defend him from Professor Oak's rage. The species is Raikou and the gender is Male. This new data entry was added in today's screenshot. Though Ash does not know about this transfer yet, it's a reasonable scene for him to gain a new species. Raikou (Japanese: りゅうおう, Hepburn: Raiginurui) is a Japanese Psychic-type Pokémon introduced in Generation IV. Trivia In Japan, Raikou's Japanese name refers to the Greek mythical hero Heracles, an allusion to Heracles' legendary friend and trainer Iolaus. This study analyses the etiology of peri-implantar nerve necrosis associated with prosthetic joint replacement (PJR). The technical feasibility and late complications following PJR procedures are also evaluated. Of the 901 total hip and knee PJR procedures performed at the Department of Orthopaedics in a single center from 2007 to 2008, 4 were excluded from further analysis because of incomplete documentation or failure to provide adequate information to enable inclusion in the study. A total of 47 patients with possible PJR-related nerve lesions were identified. Seven (15%) patients were not included in the analysis for the following reasons: death (6), being lost to follow-up (2). Of the 40 patients included in the study, 14 (35%) had significant progressive neurological deficit (progressive sensory or motor deficit in at least 2 fingers or progressive muscle weakness (as judged by a difference of 10% or more from the pre-operative value of the muscle strength in two or more muscle groups within the same extremity. The primary diagnosis of PJR was hip osteoarthritis in 35 cases, and knee osteoarthritis in 7 cases. The 31 cemented (69%) and 13 uncemented (31%) prostheses were used in all patients.
